🌱 What grows at Mac Farm? A lot more than you might think.

From garlic fields and plum orchards to pollinator-friendly crop protection, Mac Farm is helping grow a more sustainable future.

At McGill's Horticultural Research Centre, students gain hands-on experience while producing local food, supporting agricultural research and contributing to initiatives like McGill Feeding McGill. 🥒🍉🧄

As a former graduate of Mac it is nice to see the macdonald campus highlighted. Is it possible to get one of the t-shirts with the logo on it the Mac market staff wear. Is the food produced there consumed on campus. Great idea for local food

Thank you Mac Market. I am enjoying the garlic scapes, cucumbers and Swiss chard. Always a pleasure to get fresh local produce in season

Looking for ways to enjoy Montreal's beautiful weather but still need to get to campus? 🚲

Did you know McGill is a silver-certified biking campus recognized by Vélo Québec? That means that both our Downtown and MacDonald campuses offer not only plenty of bike racks, but also several self-serve repair stations and cycling-related clubs for our community to enjoy.

Whether you're starting out on your cycling journey, are looking for tips to get around the city safely, or just want to find fellow two-wheel enthusiasts, McGill will help you get rolling.

Montreal is full of great festivals for all tastes throughout the year, especially in summer!

These are just a few that you can enjoy during the summer break, all just a few steps from McGill's downtown campus.

Enjoy! 😎

A sunny day on campus, as seen in the 1981 McGill yearbook. ☀️

What's your favourite place to enjoy the sunshine at McGill?

This was my time at McGill. I started in September 1981
Those warm, sunny days relaxing on campus were the BEST!
Only a few a year but amazing
